BULLPEN BULLETINS

All Hallow's Eve looms ever closer, and all kinds of scary things are lurking about—monsters, demons, and, perhaps the scariest of all — heavy metal singers! These days, so many rock stars are haunting the halls of Marvel, they've started making long-distance dedications to each other!

There's a line in a Skid Row song that says, "Your Park Avenue leads to Skid Row." We found the opposite to be true recently, as Sebastian Bach, lead singer for Skid Row, dropped by for a pow-wow with rock 'n roll editor Mort Todd. Sebastian, who is slightly older than eighteen — but still has life to go — is a major-league Marveloid, and is very involved in the plotting of our one-shot SKID ROW comic which is due next Spring. Editor Mort says, "The SKID ROW comic will be so cosmic it will make the Infinity War look like a pillow fight!"

You know what's really scary? How about a biweekly deadline! That's what BARBIE FASHION writer Barbara Slate faces every two weeks on her new comic strip, "Makin' Ends Meet," which just started running in First For Women Magazine a month or so back. The strip, which is written, drawn, lettered, and colored by Barbara, deals with the adventures of Rosie, an "optimistic, clever, adventurous, and independent" young actress trying to make it in the big city.

"Makin' Ends Meet" tells a continuing story, though each individual strip will stand on its own; as Barbara put it, "there's a slice of life in each strip." First For Women can be found on newsstands and supermarkets all across America. Barbara noted that "all the characters I work on are young, single women with red hair!" Talk about scary — this means Barbara may wind up working on Little Orphan Annie — the girl who sees without eyes! Talk about creepy!

There is perhaps nothing more terrifying than deciding what costume to wear to a Halloween party. After all, what if you can't find a Beavis to go with your Butt-Head? Nobody ever wants to wear the back end of the donkey costume! And what if everybody else at the party comes dressed as Conan O'Brien?

Fortunately, not every party requires that much preparation. We just had a simple yet elegant party of our own to celebrate the success of our four X-MEN comics from Pizza Hut. The fine folks from the Hut were kind enough to supply us with enough pizza for 300 starving Marveloids. Editor of the giveaway X-comics, Glenn Herdling told us the Pizza Hut kid's night promotion was a resounding success. Noted Glenn, "I went to Pizza Hut the other night, and it was a pizza riot! Kids were going crazy for X-Men cups and comics!"

A pizza melee — surely a terrifying notion. You can just just picture the tomato sauce splattering the walls, and melted cheese dripping like blood!

But if you think pizza is a treat, how's this for a Halloween howler — this October 31, you can give out comics instead of candy! Pick up a pack of Marvel Comics Treats — a series of 8-page mini-comics featuring all your favorite Marvel superstars — at your local comics shop! Each mini-comic features classic reprints of such characters as Spider-Man, X-Men, Ren & Stimpy, G.I. Joe, and Barbie. So this year, why not give the kids in your neighborhood something they can really chew on!

Till next time, we'll see you at the costume shop! And, hey — let's not all be Barney the Dinosaur this year!

BOBBIE'S BABBLINGS

Halloween comes at the end of this month, and brings with it all manner of ghosties and ghoulies onto our streets. So it is only fitting that the Midnight Sons' hordes of ghosties and ghoulies should also pop up to take over the streets of the Marvel Universe this special month. "What's she babbling about," you ask?

"The Siege of Darkness," I reply. In the months of October and November, another evil dimension will force its way brutally into our Marvel dimension, and bring with it all manner of evil, weird, and insane demons of the unmasked variety. And they're not here for some harmless trick-or-treating! They are the Lilin, come home at last to their Mommie Dearest, Lilith, and they're planning on staying for more than just one spooky night.

If you haven't picked up a GHOST RIDER issue for a while, or one of the other MIDNIGHT SONS books, now is the perfect time. The books are starting off on a new adventure, with some old players and many new faces. We're capping off this event with a new corner symbol: starting in October, the book covers will be identified with a distinctive MIDNIGHT SONS dagger. Look for future appearances of Midnight Sons characters in all the books. These days, Ghost Rider might just pop in on Dr. Strange, and Werewolf by Night is a good buddy of Morbius. And don't worry — these titles are still Marvel Universe titles, which means your favorite heroes and villains from other titles could still pop up from time to time.

The Siege of Darkness crossover will include:

GHOST RIDER #44 & 45
SPIRITS OF VENGEANCE #17 & 18
MORBIUS #16 & 17
DARKHOLD #15 & 16
NIGHTSTALKERS #14 & 15
DR. STRANGE #60 & 61
MARVEL COMICS PRESENTS #143 - 146
MIDNIGHT SONS UNLIMITED #4

Please add these titles to your reading list if they aren't already, and tell us what you think of the story and our new cover look!
